I totally understand re Moscow - unless maybe he would welcome a meeting with President Putin which Emin would set up
The note I can pick up from your office when it is ready or you can maybe scan it and send to me
Thanks so

Hi Rob:

I will certainly make Mr. Trump aware of this invitation, and I know he will be honored that Emin thought of him. However, given his presidential campaign, it's highly unlikely he would have time on his calendar to go to Moscow in November. Regardless, I am sure he will want to write a congratulatory note. When ready, where should we send it and to whose attention?

I hope you are well
I am sure you are crazy busy right now
Emin has an email invite for Mr Trump to attend his father's 60th birthday in Moscow on November 8 followed by the official opening of Moscow Nobu with Robert DeNiro on November 9.
In addition, he wondered if Mr Trump might write a small message of congratulations to his father for inclusion in a celebratory book?
I can send some examples.

Good Morning

Dan, I am following up on an email a while back of something I had mentioned to Don and Paul Manafort during a meeting recently. There are believed to be around 2 million Russian American voters living in the USA - and more than 1.6 million of these use the Russian "Facebook" site V Kontakte "VK" as their preferred social media outlet. As I mentioned to you guys, through Emin and my contact at VK, they want to create a VOTE Trump 2016 promotion aired directly at these users - - people who will be voting in November. At the time, Paul had said he would welcome it and so I had the VK folks mock up a basic sample page - which I am re-sending for your approval now. It would merely require Mr. Trump to drop in a short message to Russian American voters - or a generic message depending on your choice - and the page can be up and running very quickly. I have copied the head of Partner Relations for VK - Konstantin Sikorkov - who is a good friend of mine and Emin's - on this email as he would oversee the promotion of the page etc.

Bernie Sanders is being treated very badly by the Dems. The system is rigged against him. He should run as an independent! Run Bernie, run.

Trump's Long Romance With Russia

By Josh Rogin | March 15, 2016 11:04AM ET

Photographer: Victor Boyko/Getty Images

Emin Agalarov, Donald Trump and Aras Agalarov at the Miss Universe pageant in Moscow in 2013.

When Donald Trump talks about his desire to have good relations between the U.S. and Russia, it's not a recent attraction. Trump's attempts to expand his business and his brand there date back decades, and this history casts a shadow over his pro-Russian foreign policy. As a presidential candidate, he courts Putin's favor, extending the charm offensive intended to build the Trump real-estate empire.

"Wouldn't it be nice if actually we could get along with Russia?" Trump asked at a recent Republican presidential debate. It's a line he's used in rallies as well. Trump and Russian President Vladimir Putin have exchanged praise and Trump said he "would probably get along with him very well."

Trump's attraction to Russia seems to be mutual. There is a Russian-language website that collects Trump news and offers sales of Trump books and products. There's even a Trump 2016 Russian language mock campaign site.

What Trump rarely talks about is his decades-long effort to do business in the Soviet Union and post-Soviet Russia. Good U.S.-Russian relations are potentially very lucrative for the Trump Organization. The Trump campaign did not respond to a request for comment.

In the 1980s, Trump was often seen on news shows offering his services to negotiate with the Soviets. "Why don't you negotiate the SALT talks for Reagan, Donald?" a man on the street once yelled at Trump, according to a 1990 profile of Donald and Ivana Trump in Vanity Fair. In 1987, Trump traveled to Moscow and Leningrad to discuss building hotels there. He even met with the Soviet ambassador to the U.S.

"It's a totally interesting place," Trump said at the time. "I think the Soviet Union is really making an effort to cooperate in the sense of dealing openly with other nations and in opening up the country."

In a 1997 New Yorker profile, Trump talked about his trips to Russia to explore having the Trump Organization take part in skyscraper and hotel development projects in Moscow, including the reconstruction of the Moskva and Rossiya Hotels.

"That's a very big project; I think it's the largest hotel in the world," Trump told Russian politician Alexander Ivanovich Lebed at the time. "And we're working with the local government, the mayor of Moscow and the mayor's people. So far, they've been very responsive."

Lebed, a former Russian presidential candidate, was eager to help Trump get established in the Russian market. "If Trump goes to Moscow, I think America will follow," he told Trump.

Trump traveled to Russia in the 1990s with developer Howard Lorber, whom Trump recently told the New York Times was one of his best friends. Lorber has "major investments" in Russia, according to Trump.

Negotiations over the two hotels eventually fizzled, but in 2008 the Trump Organization was at it again, announcing it planned to build elite residences and hotels in Moscow, St. Petersburg and Sochi, and license the Trump brand for other projects. Donald Trump Jr., the candidate's son, made the announcement in a speech at the 2008 "Real Estate in Russia" conference.

The younger Trump made over half a dozen trips to Russia on behalf of the Trump Organization in the two years during which the U.S. real estate market was collapsing during the Great Recession.

"The emerging world in general attributes such brand premium to real estate that we are looking all over the place, primarily Russia," Trump Jr. told a Manhattan audience in September 2008. He said that while Russia was on the Trump Organization's "A-list" of emerging markets for investment, doing business there carried risks due to corruption and "because it is a question of who knows who, whose brother is paying off who, etc."

Trump Sr.'s interest in Russian real estate development escalated in 2013. He met with Russian partners including developer Aras Agalarov to discuss building a replica of his SoHo residential development project in Moscow. Trump's other partner in the SoHo deal was Alex Sapir, son of Georgian billionaire Tamir Sapir, a well-connected real estate developer in Russia.

"The Russian market is attracted to me," Trump told Real Estate Weekly. "I have a great relationship with many Russians, and almost all of the oligarchs were in the room."

That was also the year that Trump brought his Miss Universe pageant to Moscow. Trump invited Putin to the event, although the Russian President ultimately didn't attend. The event was held at the Crocus City Hall in Moscow, which Agalarov owns.

"Do you think Putin will be going to The Miss Universe Pageant in November in Moscow - if so, will he become my new best friend?" Trump tweeted at the time.

While he was in Moscow for the pageant, Trump announced that he was planning to build a skyscraper in Moscow. He gave no details and there's been no news about the project since.

During this presidential campaign Trump has repeatedly espoused positions that are closer to Moscow's policies than his rivals' are. He calls for the U.S. to leave Syria and "let Russia fight ISIS." He believes the U.S. shouldn't lead the international effort to help Ukraine fight Russian intervention. He said that there isn't enough evidence to prove Russia is to blame for the downing of Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17.

Before he was a presidential candidate, Trump's hunger to be popular in Russia was less troubling. Now it is a conflict of interest. At minimum, there is the appearance of wrongdoing: The candidate's foreign-policy positions are conveniently aligned with his long-standing business agenda. But what's good for the Trump Organization isn't necessarily good for America.

Мы в России очень болели за тебя и теперь искренне радуемся твоей по-настоящему исторической победе. Наш народ возлагает большие надежды на то, что с твоим приходом в Белый Дом, наступит долгожданная нормализация российско-американских отношений, создадутся предпосылки для восстановления некогда обширных человеческих и деловых контактов. Американский народ в очередной раз показал свой бунтарский характер и свое нежелание жить под пятой коррумпированных политических династий. Вчерашнюю ночь я провел в окружении моих друзей и коллег. Все мы не сомкнув глаз, внимательно следили за драмой американского выборного процесса. Мы видим, что американцы искренне верят в то, что смогут изменить свою жизнь к лучшему. И веру свою они ассоциируют с тобой, Дональд. Я горжусь что могу называть тебя своим настоящим другом. Успехов и процветания тебе и всему американскому народу. Арас Агаларов

Может ли бы с кем-то встреча на следующей недели
11/19/2016 10:56	Natalya	Natalya Self	Здравствуйте Наталья. Встречу пока не подтверждали. Попросили синопсис по теме. Вообще следующая неделя не очень простая в плане встреч из-за дня благодарения
11/19/2016 14:05	Self	Natalya Self	Поняла. Синопсис дам в понедельник сразу на английском. Может, с учётом дня благодарения прилететь все-таки в следующее воскресенье. А к тому моменту будет понятно, что со в встречей

12/20/2016 6:10	Self [REDACTED]	Natalya [REDACTED] Self [REDACTED]	Здравствуйте. Страна разделена практически пополам. Кто-то радуется, а кто-то в депрессии. Всю прошлую неделю в медийном пространстве происходила антирусская истерия. Особенно активны были либералы. Сегодня новости про убийство посла несколько остудили истерику. Даже чувствовалось сочувствие. Однако отдельные комментаторы намекали, что "это русским за Алепо досталось". Это вкратце про настроения. Население кстати перестало доверять прессе, особенно либеральной. Спасибо за комментарии. А что под либеральной следует понимать?

I have today been interviewed by attorneys for the second time about it. They are concerned because it links Don Jr. to officials from Russia - which he has always denied meeting. I did say at the time this was an awful idea and a terrible meeting. They are speaking with Ike I believe also today and potentially it may go further and we may need attorneys. It's a really potentially serious situation - so you and your father should be aware. I don't even know for sure who these Russian people were but hopefully Ike can answer for them. I have told them what I know. I am really not happy being put in this situation with federal attorneys investigating etc

7/10/2017 15:23	Unknown	Unknown Self	"I was asked by my client in Moscow - Emin Agalarov - to help facilitate a meeting between a Russian attorney (Natalia Veselnitzkaya) and Donald Trump Jr. The lawyer had apparently stated she had some information regarding funding to the DNC from Russia, which she believed Mr Trump Jr. might find interesting. I reached out to Donald Trump Jr. and he agreed to squeeze us into a very tight meeting schedule. At the meeting, the Russian attorney presented a few very general remarks about campaign funding and then quickly turned the topic to that of the Magnitzky Act and the banned US adoption of Russian children - at which point the meeting was halted by Don Jr. and we left. Nothing came of that meeting and there was no follow up between the parties".

One of the key issues banning real reset of relations between the US and Russia is the US position on the continued support of the Sergei Magnitsky Rule of Law Accountability Act of 2012.

A terrible story of Sergei Magnitsky, false from beginning to end, lies at the heart of the law, a story the truthfulness of which no one in the USA ever cared to check. As a result the interests of a particular group of swindlers and intergovernmental relations were irresponsibly thrown into the scale.

Political short-sightedness of Obama Administration allowed the US to pass an act that marked the opening of a new Cold War with Russia, based on unverified words of fugitive William Browder, who renounced US citizenship for tax reasons and was sentenced in absentia to 9 years in prison.

The act which on the face of it aimed at preventing inflow of corrupt capital to the US, contained the never existent story of Magnitsky, "a lawyer", who allegedly uncovered corruption and misappropriation of funds from the Russian Treasury, for which he was arrested, tortured and beaten, and subsequently died in November 2009.

Russia has evidence that the story underlying the act is a lie from beginning to end.

The Act was signed by President Obama immediately after the elections in November 2012, after a powerful three-year lobbying campaign led by several financial groups (ZIFF Oh, HSBC) and politicians (Senator Cardin – the author of the act). It is known from open sources that at least one of those structures owned by ZIFF brothers was one of the main sponsors of the Democrats, including both electoral campaigns of President Obama.

And it was the interests of those corporations that Browder's team served in Russia. Through those structures Browder raised funds to buy shares of Russian strategic companies on the basis of false information and documents, then legitimizing hundreds of millions of dollars in the USA.

Reportedly, in 2006 US the structures of ZIFF brothers gained income of about $1 bln, including 66 mln Gazprom shares received as dividends.

At the same time, investigation of open sources of US registration authorities, and the SEC, revealed no official information relating to declaring investment activities abroad (in Russian Federation) by the aforementioned US companies for the period of 1999-2007 in the form of granting loans and buying shares of foreign companies, as well as gaining of income and payment of relevant taxes to the US budget.

However, income wrongfully received from illicit turnover of Gazprom shares and from misappropriation of money to be paid as taxes to the Russian budget, given the unawareness of the US regulatory authorities of above proceeds, is indicative of further uncontrolled use thereof, which is an element of legitimization of income received from crime.

In this case, there may also have been violations by the specified US companies controlled by Ziff Brothers, of FCPA regulations and of other US laws.

The US Department of Justice was informed of this as well as of other circumstances in July 2016 by the Office of the Prosecutor General of the Russian Federation and by the RF Ministry of Interior under US-Russia MLAT. Russian received no reaction to its MLAT request heretofore.

At the same time a number of meetings was held by representatives of Russia this summer with representatives of the Republican Party in the House of Representatives, in the course of which the latter were informed of the real circumstances preceding the passing of Magnitsky Act.

Hearings on the issue of credibility of the story underlying the 2012 Magnitsky Act were scheduled on June 14, 2016 in the subcommittee of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives chaired by Mr. Dana Rohrabacher. Russian lawyer Natalia Veselnitskaya and Russian director, author of "Magnitsky Act. Behind the scenes" were to testify at the hearings. Brief statements of intent to testify were filed. Having found out the agenda of the hearings, Browder allies in the Congress urged a hearing at the Foreign Affairs Committee the same day to hold an extended discussion on the matter of "Relations with Putin's Russia", with former US Ambassador Jack Matlock (advocating airclearing between the US and Russia) and two opponents of Russia, former US ambassador to Russia Michael McFaul and political scientist Professor Leon Aron (emigrant from the USSR) invited as experts.

On August 28, 2016 extended statements under oath of Natalia Veselnitskaya, a Russian lawyer, were submitted to the House's Foreign Affairs Committee, relating to the results of her investigation into the ee Magnitsky-Browder case, with a request to conduct a Congressional investigation. This statement was a protocol extension of the statement dated June 14, 2016. However, for some unknown reason, the extended statement of the Russian lawyer setting out the detailed analysis and the facts of the offenses committed by Browder in Russia was excluded from the documents scheduled for hearing on June 14, 2016.

In early June of this year, some of the circumstances of the Russian investigation into Browder's activities have been brought to the attention of the management of staff. The issue of the investigation of the circumstances of passing the anti-Russian law has been postponed until the results of the election campaign.

Today, all the conditions required for improvement of relations between Russia and the US, which many of the interested persons have long sought to prevent for some personal reasons, are in place.

And one of the first major steps in this direction could be the launch of Congressional investigation into the circumstances of passing the Magnitsky Act, as well as establishment of an American-Russian group composed of investigators and prosecutors, non-governmental lawyers and analysts, to conduct a joint investigation of inter-state transnational crimes.

Ok well as I am sure you understand I have to first submit this and then speak to Don and Rhona and then wait to see if they want to have a meeting - so I have no idea how long that will be and if they will agree.
Will keep you posted.
Also FYI - not sure if
Emin mentioned that I will be leaving as of January 1. So can't help in the Trump World after December.

Reportedly, in 2006 US the structures of ZIFF brothers gained income of about $1 bln, including 66 mln Gazprom shares received as dividends.

At the same time, investigation of open sources of US registration authorities, and the SEC, revealed no official information relating to declaring investment activities abroad (in Russian Federation) by the afore mentioned US companies for the period of 1999-2007 in the form of granting loans and buying shares of foreign companies, as well as gaining of income and payment of relevant taxes to the US budget.

However, income wrongfully received from illicit turnover of Gazprom shares and from misappropriation of money to be paid as taxes to the Russian budget, given the unawareness of the US regulatory authorities of above proceeds, is indicative of further uncontrolled use thereof, which is an element of legitimization of income received from crime.

In this case, there may also have been violations by the specified US companies controlled by Ziff Brothers, of FCPA regulations and of other US laws.

The US Department of Justice was informed of this as well as of other circumstances in July 2016 by the Office of the Prosecutor General of the Russian Federation and by the RF Ministry of Interior under US-Russia MLAT. Russian received no reaction to its MLAT request heretofore.

At the same time a number of meetings was held by representatives of Russia this summer with representatives of the Republican Party in the House of Representatives, in the course of which the latter were informed of the real circumstances preceding the passing of Magnitsky Act.

Hearings on the issue of credibility of the story underlying the 2012 Magnitsky Act were scheduled on June 14, 2016 in the subcommittee of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives chaired by Mr. Dana Rohrabacher. Russian lawyer Natalia Veselnitskaya and Russian director, author of "Magnitsky Act. Behind the scenes" were to testify at the hearings. Brief statements of intent to testify were filed. Having found out the agenda of the hearings, Browder allies in the Congress urged a hearing at the Foreign Affairs Committee the same day to hold an extended discussion on the matter of "Relations with Putin's Russia", with former US Ambassador Jack Matlock (advocating airclearing between the US and Russia) and two opponents of Russia, former US ambassador to Russia Michael McFaul and political scientist Professor Leon Aron (emigrant from the USSR) invited as experts.

On August 28, 2016 extended statements under oath of Natalia Veselnitskaya, a Russian lawyer, were submitted to the House's Foreign Affairs Committee, relating to the results of her investigation into the ee Magnitsky-Browder case, with a request to conduct a Congressional investigation. This statement was a protocol extension of the statement dated June 14, 2016. However, for some unknown reason, the extended statement of the Russian lawyer setting out the detailed analysis and the facts of the offenses committed by Browder in Russia was excluded from the documents scheduled for hearing on June 14, 2016.

In early June of this year, some of the circumstances of the Russian investigation into Browder's activities have been brought to the attention of the management of staff. The issue of the investigation of the circumstances of passing the anti-Russian law has been postponed until the results of the election campaign.

Today, all the conditions required for improvement of relations between Russia and the US, which many of the interested persons have long sought to prevent for some personal reasons, are in place.

And one of the first major steps in this direction could be the launch of Congressional investigation into the circumstances of passing the Magnitsky Act, as well as establishment of an American-Russian group composed of investigators and prosecutors, non-governmental lawyers and analysts, to conduct a joint investigation of inter-state transnational crimes.

He said he was interested in whether Mr. A was selling his US holdings and moving back to Russia. I said that I didn't know what he was talking about and that I still didn't understand why any of this would be interesting to him. We went back and forth and few times and finally he said he is looking into Mr. A's connections to Mr. T. I said I still didn't understand what his story angle was but I told him that if he had specific questions he could call me and ask me but that he needed to stop visiting private property and bothering Mr. A's daughter etc. He said that he understood and would call me if he had anything specific to ask.

Hi
Bunch of big hitting political journalists have called Me (no idea how they got my number) re the story in NY times today Washington Post was the most pushy and keen to hang this on you (Emin) - I tried to assure her that I had been the one requesting Don meet with her and would not comment on who originated the request in Moscow.
Should we prepare a statement?
Trump lawyers are also in a statement apparently saying the reason for the meeting was "mis represented " by us and that her agenda was Manitzky act and adoption.
They also say FBI may be investigating this Meeting further Thoughts??

What about this as a statement:

It should

Come from I think from either Aras, you or me or maybe from Crocus Group as a whole.

"The meeting that took place in June 2016 between Miss xxx and representatives of the Trump Campaign was the result of a personal request by us and in no way connected with the Russian Government or any of its officials. "

Statement

Rob:

Please consider the following as a statement. Please note that there will always be potential follow-up questions to any statement but if you feel comfortable with this statement and are comfortable saying nothing more, at least for the time being, that would be our preference. Again, any statement should be accurate as to your very best recollection.

"As the person who arranged the meeting, I can definitively state that the statements I have read by Donald Trump Jr. are 100% accurate. The meeting was a complete waste of time and Don was never told Ms. Veselnitskaya's name prior to the meeting. Ms. Veselnitskaya mostly talked about the Magnitsky Act and Russian adoption laws and the meeting lasted 20 to 30 minutes at most. There was never any follow up and nothing ever came of the meeting."

- Robert Goldstone

Thank you.
